Fatts Russell

A lightning quick guard with the ability to spread the floor with deep range. Fatts Russell is the leader of this Rhode Island team. At 5'9", Fatts makes up for his lack of height by using a great change of speed with a quick first step to get into the lane. With great body control in the air he is able to maneuver through defenders and often finish around length at the rim. As the primary play-maker he could make better decisions. He took a couple of questionable shot selections and forced some passes that just weren't there. At his small stature he did not get taken advantage of defensively and got a couple of nice steals. His height is obviously an issue in terms of his professional career but he will be one of the best guards in the A10 this season as Rhode Island will play through him.
