

Jordan Usher (Film: March 13, 2020, Championship Final vs Florida State)

Usher is a big, physical guard who leverages his body well as he started the game off with a steal and layup. Unfortunately, Usher can quickly takeover an offense with questionable shot selection. From 14:52-9:47 he missed four consecutive shots. His ability to score in a half court set was lacking. He does defend multiple positions due to his size and is not afraid to switch on multiple assignments.

Usher's cold shooting from distance continued into the second half as he missed both a midrange and three point shot at 19:36 and 15:59 respectively. Finished the game strong to help secure a win in a close contest. From 4:38 through the final buzzer Usher posted 2 rebounds, 6 points and shot a strong 4-4 from the free throw line.

Even though Usher can hijack an offensive possession at any given time he does play hard and can contribute across the box score. There are shades of Russell Westbrook to his game in that he attacks the basket with his big frame and was explosive in transition, but his basketball IQ leaves something to be desired.

Written by: Andrew Barton

<https://www.linkedin.com/in/andrew-barton-70845b168/>