

URI VS. BOSTON COLLEGE 10/26/20

DeMarr Langford Jr.

The freshmen got his first start of his young career in this game. At 6-5 with a solid build he poses to be a mismatch problem later in his career. He is able to guard multiple positions between his size and speed. He is also able to get into the lane pretty well with a fluid handle. He struggled a little bit in terms of getting open. There was a couple times he threw off the rhythm of the offense because had to catch the ball far past the three point line or he just was not open. This will not be a long term problem as it was just his second game in college and only played nine minutes in the first game he had against Villanova. I believe he is going to have a great career at Boston College and has potential to be the best player on this team down the road.
