

Julian Champagnie (St. John's) 6'8" 220 SF/PF (Film 2/06/21 vs. Providence)

Champagnie started the game off hot. He came out and scored 15 of his 28 in the first 7 minutes of the game Champagnie was the leading scorer for St. John's and helped them to win 6 straight.

Offensively his jump shot was really clicking. He hit 4 threes and about 4 mid-range jump shots. Both off the bounce and catch and shoot shots from mid-range. Providence started in a zone and he found the soft spots and exploited them. He found the rolling big in his lone Pick n Roll +opportunity for a good find.

On defense I believe he is a good athlete and able to move laterally I just need more effort. He gave up a couple jump shots, some made some missed because he did not close out with a hand high.

I once again saw his bad body language as he gets frustrated with his teammates. It is something that is concerning to me, but I would love to hear more about who he is as an actual person from people who actually know and work with him. Either way he is super talented and should eventually be a draft pick. I see shades of Kyle Kuzma in his game.
